

From Downtown Columbus

- Take I-670 heading northeast toward the Columbus Airport
- Exit onto US-62 heading east toward Gahanna
- Turn left at the signal light in Gahanna village onto Mill Street
- Stay on US-62, which changes name to Johnstown Road, heading toward New Albany
- At the one and only traffic circle you encounter, take the second exit and stay on US-62 heading toward New Albany
- Once in the Village of New Albany, travel past the Post Office and turn left at the next signal light onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From Columbus Academy

- Take US-62 heading east toward New Albany
- Stay on US-62, which changes name to Johnstown Road, heading toward New Albany
- At the one and only traffic circle you encounter, take the second exit and stay on US-62 heading toward New Albany
- Once in the Village of New Albany, travel past the Post Office and turn left at the next signal light onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From One Whitebarn Road

- Turn left onto Kitzmiller Road toward Classic Drive
- Turn left onto Dublin Granville Road
You will cross HWY-605 (New Albany Condit Road and US-62 (Johnstown Road)).
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the North (Westerville, Polaris, Powell, Delaware)

- Drive south toward the northern loop of I-270
- Take I-270 east toward New Albany
- Take Exit 30 to merge onto OH-161 heading east toward New Albany
- Take the New Albany Road exit
- At the top of the ramp at the signal light, turn right onto New Albany Road
- At the end of the road, turn left onto Fodor Road
- Continue on Fodor Road, go past the stop sign and be prepared to move into the turn left at the next signal light
- At the signal light, turn left onto Dublin Granville Road
- Less than .5 mile down the road, the entrance to the McCoy Center for the Arts will be on your left.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the Northwest (Dublin, Worthington, Marysville, Hilliard)

- Drive toward the northern loop of I-270
- Take I-270 east toward New Albany
- Take Exit 30 to merge onto OH-161 heading east toward New Albany
- Take the New Albany Road exit
- At the top of the ramp at the signal light, turn right onto New Albany Road
- At the end of the road, turn left onto Fodor Road
- Continue on Fodor Road, go past the stop sign and be prepared to move into the turn left at the next signal light
- At the signal light, turn left onto Dublin Granville Road
- Less than .5 mile down the road, the entrance to the McCoy Center for the Arts will be on your left.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the West (Springfield, London, West Jefferson, Lincoln Village)

- Head east on I-70 toward Columbus
- Merge onto I-670 heading northeast toward the Columbus Airport
- Exit onto US-62 heading east toward Gahanna
- Turn left at the signal light in Gahanna village onto Mill Street
- Stay on US-62, which changes name to Johnstown Road, heading toward New Albany
- At the one and only traffic circle you encounter, take the second exit and stay on US-62 heading toward New Albany
- Once in the Village of New Albany, travel past the Post Office and turn left at the next signal light onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the Southwest (Cincinnati, Jeffersonville, Grove City)

- Head east on I-71 toward Columbus
- Take exit 109B to merge onto I-670 heading northeast toward the Columbus Airport
- Exit onto US-62 heading east toward Gahanna
- Turn left at the signal light in Gahanna village onto Mill Street
- Stay on US-62, which changes name to Johnstown Road, heading toward New Albany
- At the one and only traffic circle you encounter, take the second exit and stay on US-62 heading toward New Albany
- Once in the Village of New Albany, travel past the Post Office and turn left at the next signal light onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the South (Circleville, Pickerington, Canal Winchester, Lancaster)

- Drive north toward the southern loop of I-270
- Take I-270 east
- Exit onto US-62 heading east toward Gahanna
- Turn left at the signal light in Gahanna village onto Mill Street
- Stay on US-62, which changes name to Johnstown Road, heading toward New Albany
- At the one and only traffic circle you encounter, take the second exit and stay on US-62 heading toward New Albany
- Once in the Village of New Albany, travel past the Post Office and turn left at the next signal light onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center

From the East (Granville, Newark, Zanesville)

- Drive west on OH-161
- Take the US-62 exit toward Johnstown & New Albany
- At the end of the ramp, turn left at the signal light onto Johnstown Road/Main Street heading toward New Albany
- At the third signal light, turn right onto Dublin Granville Road
- The entrance of the McCoy Center for the Arts will be immediately on your right.
Look for an octagonal brick building with white windows that face the street
- Parking lots surround the McCoy Center